

Call for Women working in sound art and experimental music

The artist organisations Ting Shuo Hear Say and Women in Sound Women on Sound (WISWOS) have come together to create a call for three UK based women working in sound art and experimental music. Selected artists will be partnered with a female Taiwanese collaborator to create a track for publication on a compilation album in September 2021. The purpose of this call is to create an opportunity for UK based and Taiwan based collaborators to come together for a networking and career development opportunity.

The selected artists will be supported by both organisations to promote their practice through online interviews, media attention, and opportunities to present this project output to an international audience.

Additionally, each artist will receive a bursary of £260 to support their collaboration.

Submission detailed and deadline

Please send a 200 word bio describing your practice and interests in sound, a link to a previous sound work and 250 words describing the benefits that such a collaboration and opportunity would have on your practice going forward.

Deadline for submission is the 1st of April 2021.
Announcement to be made on the 16th of April 2021.

Please send application submission to info@wiswos.com

This project is funded by the Connections through Culture grant, by the British Council and National Culture and Arts Foundation in Taiwan.
